In current economic climate, where people are watching their spending, discount card can offer average savings of 20 percent off drug retail prices

Boulder City today launched a program to help provide residents with some relief from the high cost of prescription drugs. The city is making free prescription drug discount cards available to city residents through a program sponsored by the National League of Cities (NLC). The discount cards offer city residents average savings of 20 percent off the retail price of commonly prescribed drugs.

The discount cards may be used by all residents of Boulder City and has no restrictions based on the resident's age, income level, or existing health coverage. The NLC card can be used when purchasing prescription drugs at the pharmacies around the city, as well as at more than 60,000 participating retail pharmacies across the country.

"In the current economic climate, where many people are watching what they spend, Boulder City is happy to partner with the National League of Cities to make this prescription discount card available for our residents," said Rose Ann Miele, Boulder City PIO. "Whether or not an individual has prescription coverage, this program can make it easier for our residents to afford the drugs they need to deal with a short-term illness or stay healthy by managing a chronic condition."

Cards can be printed from the Internet at www.caremark.com/nlc and are also available at BCTV, 508 Nevada Way, the Boulder City Chamber of Commerce, 465 Nevada Way, the Utility Department in City Hall, 401 California Avenue and the City Manager's Office in City Hall at no cost to city residents. City residents can visit www.caremark.com/nlc to access program tools or call toll-free 1-888-620-1749 for assistance with the program.

"Not only does the NLC prescription discount card help residents save money on their medications, it is easy to use," said Miele. "Boulder City residents only have to show their card when purchasing medication at one of the many participating pharmacies. There is no enrollment form required to get a card, no membership fee of any kind and city residents and their family members can use the card any time their prescriptions are not covered by insurance."

The discount card program is administered by CVS Caremark.
